Pleasing Appearance of the City.

How Local Architecture Has Developed, Aided by Building Associations, in Increasing a Demand for Well-Appointed Homes.

Architectural development in Indianapolis is Bee the least noticeable feature of the city's growth, as a reporter found yesterday in leading rehitest Gibson to tell what he knew about it. He would not commit himself to early local his tory, as he is chary of getting into a controversy as to dates and persons pertaining to pioneer days. But as he has lived here nearly all his life, his professional data and remembrances begin almost at a time when architecture began to leave its impress on the buildings of the city. "Our early dwelling house architecture," he said, "is of a better character than our business buildings. The best of the public works of the early period is probably the Blind Asylum, with its splendid Ionic porels. A noticeable example is the dwelling house occupied by E. F. Claypool, on Meridian, between New York and Vermont streets. It is classic in its outline and demand them is nothing frivolous about it. talls, and there is nothing frivolous about it.
The architect, I believe, was Mr. Costigan. He did a good business in his profession here, and made the plans for the Hasselman house, on the sorner of Vermont and Meridian. He was also architect of the Blind Asylum, and the Bates House as it was originally conceived. That House as it was originally conceived. That was a good building in its time. The interior work, particularly the entrance to the dining room, and other work on the same floor, was good, being correct in outline and detail.
All this has long since been removed. Mr.
Smithmeyer, architect of the National Library, planted the house on the southeast corner of Meridian and Michigan streets. I believe he is also the architect of the old State offices, which ably the last work he did in Indianapolis. The general style of his design, when not hampered, was inclined to be florid. He and Costigan probably made the earliest use of terra cotta in this city. Mr. Costigan, I believe, was the architect of the Metropolitan Theater, now called the "Park." It has considerable good detail on the outside, where it has not been al-Some of the decoration there is in terra coment. Another example of his work on the southwest corner of Meridian and was the architect of a number of splendid build Church, the Conduitt Block, the sit Blake House, on the corner of Tennessee mber correctly, his first job in this city.
sed house in its day, and is now suband well preserved. Mr. Curzon was ent the smaller and cheaper class of 100 to $4,000, is the one receiving the most atone are giving as much thought to the aras did ewsers of the more elaborate structures bails a few years ago. There are a larger proportion of ambitious small houses being erected at this time than ever before. People who build this class of homes expect all the comforts and many of the luxuries of the more expensive houses. In a few years there will be hundreds, if not thousands of small buildings of six seven, eight and ten rooms, of moderate cost, which have all the conveniences of the larger and more elaborate structures. I can remember a few years ago when I worked as a draughtsman in the vrrious architects' offihad to plan houses of less than $2,500 or $3,000 in cost. Many of such houses were built with-out bath-rooms, and we seldom considered a fur-nace and had very few conveniences in the bitchen. Now all this is changed. A great many houses which cost even less than $1,500 come into the hands of the architect, which must have a certain amount of plumbing. If a house exceeds $1,800 or $2,000 in cost, it must include s bath-room, and the best of plumbing fixtures that can be put into it. The next, and almost naiversal auxiliary to home comfort, is a fur-nace. Others of the modern conveniences and helps to the housekeeper are laundry ly successful in the construction of appearing, dignified dwellings, among the Henderson, Browning and and a profusion of grates. All these things are thought to be indispensable. Then the taste with which the house is decorated upon the outside and inside has changed. It is less gaudy; there is less on the exterior to decay and to make the structure look shabby in a short time. The interior is quieter in its de-coration, more substantial and altogether more elegant. All these things go with the house of moderate cost, which would only have been thought of a few years ago in connection with Structures of a more expensive kind.

"What is the professional estimate of the city's public buildings?" "Good. In the line of public architecture s great many pleasant things have been said of the State-house, which will always be a monument to the good taste of the architect and the good business sense and integrity of the commissioners. The court house, while the intenamong architects as a success that will compare with the State-house. The Union Station is our latest notable acquisition. It is beautiful, well built, something that will make an advantageous impression upon the minds of travelers, whether arriving or departing. It cannot but be beneficial in a material way, bearing on the interests and prosperity of the city."

"What effect have the building associations of the city had on the architecture of the city?" "A very marked one. Most people discon-nected with such associations have an idea that they are used altogether for residences of an inferior class, in which architectural design and finish is not employed. This idea is erroneous. A large number of residence properties costing from $2,500 to $4,000 have been erected here by the aid of the associations, and men who have considerable means, but who dislike to take anything out of their business for the purpose of building themselves homes, are beginning to ask themselves, 'Why should a man rent?' and to find out that such subtracting of capital from business is not necessary, and that they can build the houses they want without disturbing other investments. A well-selected lot will usually at least pay the interest on the money it costs by its appreciation in value. Fifteen shares of $200 each in an average building association will cost say $7.50 a week, or with the premium, taxes and insurance counted in, from $25 to $50 s month, which is but little more than the rent asked for a $3,000 house in a good neighborhood.

If the premium does not exceed $10 the money will cost but a triffe over 6 per cent., and with ownership comes the idea of a home and all the artistic development of it that is within one's

EXPERIENCE OF A SURGEON

As a Patient in England and America He Learns the Value of Certain Treatment.

After six months' absence, most of the time journeying abroad, Dr. John Chambers returned home Friday, coming directly from Philadelphia, where he was under the surgical treatment of Dr. George Mears, formerly of this city. While out one rainy September day in Edinburgh he slipped upon the wet sidewalk, and falling with great force, received an injury in his left shoulder joint. The eminent Dr. Annandale, professor of surgery in the University of Edinburgh, was called, and assured the Doctor he would be all right in a few days. Then some eminent surgeons in London and Paris advised rest, massage and liniments, and so a month was lost, the joint becoming worse. and the muscles atrophied. On arriving at Philadelphia Dr. Mears put Dr. Chambers under ether and diognosed a forward dislocacation and at once replaced the bone. Six weeks of daily treatment with electricity and massage, during which time Dr. Mears chioroformed his patient a dozen times, as ether did not scree with him, so as to break up adhesions, watched till morning the splendidly drilled and uniformed companies of that city marching the streets and declaring their joy at the result. He is sure interest and enthusiasm could not have been greater at Indianapolis. Dr. Chambers speaks in the highest terms of the position a former citizen of this city, Dr. T. Parvin, has attained in the Jefferson Medical College and among the physicians of Philadelphia. He saw him make four notable operations in one day in his branch, surgical diseases of women, and the younger school of Philadelphia operating zynæ-cologists attend his clinics and hold him in the greatest deference. Dr. Geo. Mears, also once of this city, takes Dr. Parvin's clinics after the college closes. He lectures on surgery at the college, and is in high esteem as teacher, author and operator. Dr. Chambers's family returned with him. Nothing less than the twentieth or thirtieth cardiac intermission will ever drive him out of Indianapolis again.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVE.

Agents Pleased with Prospects, as Inquiries from Outside Capitalists Are Numerous.

The real estate market continues active, and agents are highly pleased with the outlook. The most encouraging feature is the large number of inquiries coming from capitalists in other cities. It appears that moneyed men who have been watching Indianapolis since the introduction of natural gas are beginning to have confidence in the future development of the city, and are therefore anxious to plant their capital here. " think every agent in the city is having more or less correspondence with outside capitalists," said a real estate agent, yesterday, "and the indications are that there will be some notable investments about the first of the year. Moneyed nen always begin to make investments about the beginning of each year, and I have every reason to believe that more men of capital will come into Indianapolis in the early weeks of 1889 than in many former seasons combined. There are some deals soon to be closed, but they will not be made public for a few weeks." Home capitalists are also showing a disposition to invest their surplus money in real estate, and many men who have been making investments for a year or two, with gratifying results, are preparme to branch out during the coming year.

During the last week fifty-five deeds were reporded, representing a valuation of $121,418.30. Among the more important transactions were Etna Life Insurance Company to Margaret

E. Armentrout, residence on North Delaware street, between Walnut and North streets, $6,000; Catharine J. Holmes to Geo. W. Johnston, residence on North Mississippi street, between Third and Fourth streets, $6,500; the First National Bank of Indianapolis No. 2556 to Van Camp Packing Company, the building at the intersection of Kentucky avenue, and formerly known as Holmes, Pettit & Bradshaw's pork-house, $22,500; the heire of J. O. D. Lilly to Lilly Varnish Company, the factory of the Lilly Varnish Company on Rose street, $8.500; Samuel Moore to Merrill W. Hightshoe, farm in Wayne township, $10,500; the Berkshire Life Insurance Company to David C. Bryan, residence on North Meridian street, near Walnut street, $6,000.

As another evidence of the coming prosperity it is reported to have been definitely settled that the Grant locomotive-works will be removed from their present location at Paterson, N. J., and it is believed that the company will decide on Indianapolis or Chicago.

One of the firms has since Thursday morning last sold sixty-seven thousand five hundred dollars' worth of real estate. One of the pieces included in this amount is what is known as the Murphy property, on the northwest corner of Maryland and Illinois streets. The price paid Wm. Burford, who has owned the property for some years past, was $35,000. The purchaser will tear down the present building and erect a handsome block in its place. Another sale was that of two acres and a half on the West Side to H. Sample, a capitalist of Lafayette, who has also purchased the Clark planing-mill and lumber-yard. He proposes to place one of his sons in business here. The mill is to be enlarged and other improvements made. The land sold t $1,400 an acre.

CULLINGS FROM THE COURTS.

An Order to Check Annoyances Caused by Divorce Complaints. The Superior Court judges are so annoyed by unhappy couples seeking divorces that they have concluded to deal heroically with such cases in the future. It has frequently been the case that a dissatisfied husband or wife would file a complaint for divorce, and instead of waiting for the case to take its regular place on the calendar, would go before the judge in the midst of a jury trial and demand a hearing.
The parties have been a nuisance, and Judge Walker has taken the initiative step toward a reform. Yesterday he issued an order to the effect that no divorce case shall be tried at or during any term in which the court is engaged in trials by jury, but such cases, whether at issue or on default, shall be set for trial at the term in which trials by the court only are in hearing, and then they shall be tried only when regularly set for trial on the calendar as other causes are to be tried by the court. The other judges will follow

Judge Walker's example. A Scheme That Falled. Judge Irvin finally disposed of Laura March yesterday by sentencing her to the Reformatory for two years. Since the case was first called for trial twentyfive criminals have been sent to the penitentiary, and sentences entered in a half-hundred other cases. The best dodge of the woman was to produce a letter alleged to have been received by the woman who obtained the furniture from Born & Co. It Mrs. March was innocent, and that the writer was the real person who obtained the goods. It was proven that the letter was not genuine, and the Judge made haste to overrule the motion for a new trial before another scheme to save the woman was concected.

A Rehearing Granted. Judge Hadley has granted a new trial in the muchcontested suit of Alexander Jones, administrator de bonus non of Abner Pope, against Edward S. Pope. The latter was the executor of the will of Abner Pope and it was charged that he misappropriated money belonging to the heirs of the deceased. He was re-moved from the trust, and Mr. Jones was appointed administrator. Seven years ago suit was brought against Edward S. Pope for $10,000, which, it was alleged, he owed the estate, and a judgment was given for the full amount. Yesterday both plaintiffs and defendant applied for a rehearing, and the Judge was obligged to great it.

The Grand Jury Adjourns. The grand jury in the United States District Court adjourned yesterday evening, until the 14th of next menth, without making any returns. Assistant District Attorney Bailey explains the seeming disproportion between the grist ground out and the amount of wind power and machinery employed, on the ground that the business before the jury has been so voluminous that there has been no opportunity of preparing indictments. Judge Claypool, who has qualified as assistant to Bailey, spent part of yesterday in the jury-room, where witnesses were examined from several counties. There is no apparent diminution in the issue of subpoenas.

Both Sides Satisfied. The second trial of the suit of Mary A. Wise against the Citizens' Street-railroad Company, for damages, came to an end in Judge Howe's room yesterday. The jury, after deliberating twenty-four hours, returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $2,000. The first verdict she received for $5,000 was set aside by Judge Walker, before whom the case was heard. Both the company and Mrs. Wise seem to be satisfied with the present verdict, and there will probably be no appeal.

Threatened to Burn Property. Mrs. Mary J. Beckley, of New Augusta, has been declared insane. She was removed to the hospital ast evening. Her mind has been failing for several months, and recently she showed a tendency to de-stroy property in threatening to burn her neighbors' houses. Ill health is attributed as the cause of her mental trouble.

Released from Jall. Charles B. Wiley, of Vermillion county, who was fined and sent to jail for six months for counterfeiting, by the United States District Court, was discharged yesterday under the provisions of the pauper brought perfect use of the joint, and Dr. Chambers now finds himself fuily restored in health and strength, although the failure of the foreign surgeons to immediately anesthetize and diagnose the injury entailed three months of suffering and the danger of permanent deformity.

Dr. Chambers, on reaching home, walked about his familiar rooms with the joy of a boy home from college. He seems thoroughly satisfied that United States people, and especially United States physicians, are good enough for him. His time, since returning, has been taken up by the calls of the city physicians, among whom he is a universal farrite on account of both his genial even pre and professional abilities. He regretice that he could not be here during the political campaign, but as his hotel was next the Union League Club of Philadelphia, he kept posted and enthusiastic, and on the night of the 6th of November

GUARDING AGAINST DANGERS.

Sanital y Inspection Service and a Measure R. garding a Pure Water Supply.

At a mee ting of the city Board of Health, yesterday mon ling. Secretary Earp submitted a resume of the work accomplished by the sanitary officers, Messrs. Fohl, Hidden and Crane during the past year. He spoke in praise of the service they had rendered, and showed that notwithstanding they had each done a great amount of work, they had not been able to keep the sanitary con dition of the city what it should be. After some discussion Dr. Earp moved that the poard petition the Council and Board of Aldermen to increase the force by at least two men. He regarded such an increase as an absolute necessity in order to accomplish the proper amount of sanitary work, including the inspecof pregnises and the condemnation of bat! meat. The motion was unanimously can ried. It was decided that if two more me a were appointed the sanitary force should be divided as follows: Two inspectors of meat as d bad food in general; two sanitary officers to inspect vaults, premises, and and one clerk in the off ce.

A resolution offered by Col. N. R. Ruckle and adopted, recommended the passage of general ordinance No. 54, prohibiting the burial of dead bodies within the city limits, and providing penalties for the violation thereof. The board also indorsed an ordinance to prevent the water company from turning canal water into the city mains. It will be introduced in the Council at the first meeting in January. The ordinance provides that the valve at the pump-house connecting the canal with the reservoir shall be scaled, and whenever it is opened the water consumers are to be notified by a fire alarm. It also compels the company to let all the canal water out of the mains before consumers are notified to begin using the water again. The valve, when broken, is to be reserved under the direction of the health board. Quite a number of the councilmen favor the ord, nance, and it will likely be passed.
